Overview

About Brooke Lenneman

Brooke Lenneman is a local government and land use attorney who represents local governments and private sector clients. She serves as the City Attorney for the City of Warrenville, assists in the representation of the Cities of Des Plaines and Waukegan and the Village of Libertyville, and provides counsel to many of the Firm's other local government clients.

Brooke's representation of local governments focuses on mitigation of risk, advising on best practices, and arriving at pragmatic solutions. Her practice encompasses a full range of municipal law topics, including zoning, licensing, permitting, and contracting issues, as well as constitutional and statutory compliance, including compliance with the Illinois Freedom of Information Act, Illinois Open Meetings Act, Prevailing Wage Act, and Illinois State Officials and Employees Ethics Act. She regularly attends board and commission meetings for local government clients.

Brooke has extensive experience drafting legislation, including guiding clients through complete overhauls of their zoning and building codes. She routinely negotiates and drafts zoning and other development approvals, construction, software, and professional services contracts, and intergovernmental agreements.

In addition, Brooke represents local government clients in code enforcement, demolition, and railroad right-of-way matters in court and before the Illinois Commerce Commission.

For private sector clients, Brooke represents property owners and developers in a variety of land use projects, and is regularly engaged to resolve licensing, permitting, zoning, and other regulatory issues. She also counsels business and property owners when building, zoning, licensing, or other municipal code violations have been alleged, including litigation in Circuit Court and before administrative bodies.

Brooke previously served as Assistant Corporation Counsel for the City of Chicago where she gained extensive knowledge of Chicago's Municipal Code, permitting processes, zoning administration, and legislative processes. Brooke prosecuted violations of the City's zoning ordinance and building code, and defended the City in complaints for equitable relief.
